

The Emotions and Sensations Chart

Name what you feel. Locate it in the body. Begin there. The body usually identifies the emotion before the mind can name it.

Fear Anxious racing heart · shallow breath · restless legs Worried tight stomach · busy mind · clenched jaw Overwhelmed buzzing head · tight chest · urge to escape Frozen heavy limbs · held breath · blank mind Insecure hot face · hunched shoulders · dry mouth	Anger Irritated tight jaw · short breath · edgy skin Frustrated clenched fists · pressure in head · heat in chest Resentful sour stomach · stiff shoulders · tight throat Furious pounding pulse · flushed face · shaking hands Defensive raised shoulders · crossed arms · fast speech	Sadness Lonely hollow chest · aching throat · heavy arms Grieving waves in the chest · tears · tired body Discouraged sinking stomach · slumped shoulders · slow breath Disappointed dropped chest · deflated · a long sigh Empty numb limbs · flat voice · no appetite	Shame and guilt Embarrassed hot cheeks · urge to hide · tight stomach Guilty knot in the stomach · heavy chest · restless Inadequate collapsed chest · lowered eyes · tight throat Self-critical clenched stomach · pressure in head · tense neck Rejected sting in the chest · cold hands · lump in throat	Joy Excited fluttering stomach · quick pulse · bounce in the step Proud lifted chest · upright spine · warm face Grateful warm chest · soft eyes · slow breath Playful light limbs · loose shoulders · easy smile Relieved dropped shoulders · long exhale · loose jaw	Calm and connection Peaceful slow breath · soft belly · still body Safe relaxed jaw · warm hands · steady heartbeat Connected open chest · warmth · soft eyes Grounded weight in the feet · even breath · steady hands Content loose muscles · quiet mind · gentle warmth
--	--	--	--	---	--

How to read it. Start with what you notice in your body. Find the closest match under a family. Read left to the emotion name. Stay with the name. Nothing needs fixing yet.